Relax And Celebrate Summer

OK, we realize Hammock Day, celebrated in July, isn't exactly famous. But it does serve as a lighthearted reminder to relax and enjoy the lazy days of summer. When you're done with your hammock-induced nap, grab your laptop or tablet for some surfing.

Of course, even when you want to move slowly, you don't want your Internet connection to do the same. If you need more speed, call us at 877.426.5638 to ask about our super-fast (and affordable) Internet plans. Starting July 27, get Free Internet Installation on any plan with a download speed of 3Mbps or higher. If you are already a Hamilton.net customer, increase your Internet speed to 3 Mbps or higher between now & Sept 4, and you'll receive $25 off your next bill.

This Month's FAQ - What Do I Do If My Twitter Account Has Been Hacked?

Question: I've seen some tweets that I didn't post, and I suspect my Twitter account has been hacked. How can I know for sure, and what can I do about it?

Answer: Often Twitter hacking is evident from tweets you didn't post, as with your situation, or direct messages sent from your account, email changes, or other activity that you didn't authorize. If you even suspect your account has been hacked, follow the steps below:

1. Request a password reset. Use the password reset form within Twitter, and check for the reset email at the address associated with your Twitter account. Log on and immediately reset your password to one you'll remember.
2. Revoke connections to third-party applications. To do this, visit the Apps section in your settings. Remove access for any third-party applications you don't recognize. Then, update your password in remaining third-party applications.
3. Log out of Twitter on your phone or other devices. Next time you log on, you'll be asked to provide the new password.
4. If you still need help, contact Twitter Support.
